

Tiden tickar. Tikkr räknar.

The idea

Tikkr is simple time tracking for small and medium-sized businesses. Clock in, clock out, done. The brand should feel the same way: modern, trustworthy, simple, efficient and friendly, with a light technical edge.

The symbol is a circle split in two. The left half is the moment you clock in, the right half the moment you clock out, set slightly later. Together they make one whole working day.

It is built only from two equal half-circles, so it stays clear from a 16 px browser tab to a billboard.

Light alternative

Default

Fjord tile with Snö and Tick halves. Use for app stores, home screens and favicons.

Small sizes

At 16–32 px use the favicon file: the halves are drawn slightly bigger so they stay readable.

Platforms

Give iOS and Android the square file; they apply their own rounded mask.

Things to avoid

Do not stretch or squash it.

Do not rotate it.

Do not change the colours.

Do not swap the halves.

Do not add shadows, gradients or effects.

Do not use low-contrast backgrounds.

Do not retype the wordmark in another font.

Do not place it on busy patterns.

In use: LinkedIn and social

Banners in three colourways: Fjord, Snö and Tick. On personal banners keep content to the right; the profile photo covers the lower left.

Profile image: the symbol centred with plenty of space, so it survives the circular crop.
